Fine Arts

Fine Arts Management

Artists and aspiring leaders of industry represent the brightest part of our past and the most promising aspect of our future. The Morley Memorial Music Building and the Fine and Performing Arts Center represent Lake Erie College's traditional commitment to instruction in the Arts. Our new Fine Arts Management major represents our commitment to your future.

Through pursuing your degree in Fine Arts Management, you will have more than the opportunity to develop as an artist. Within this interdisciplinary field of study, you will gain the necessary experience and skills to market your own works, professionally market the works of other artists, or successfully manage non-profit fine arts organizations. The course work and experiential learning opportunities associated with this major are as diverse as the career paths that you, as an artist and business leader, wish to pursue.

As a student within the Fine Arts Management major, you will pursue course work in the fine and performing arts, business administration, graphic design, and communications. In your effort to finish your degree, you will complete various artistic practica and a number of internships. As a student of Fine Arts Management, you can expect the support of faculty who know your name, your aspirations, and your professional goals.

The Fine Arts Major

If you possess a greater understanding of the various creative processes in the arts, you will become a more sensitive, expressive, and effective artist. This interdisciplinary philosophy guides our curriculum. Through providing you with the broadest possible experience within the arts, we express our commitment to your comprehensive development. This commitment exceeds the limits of a traditional major within an individual art form.

As a Fine Arts student at Lake Erie College, you will select an area of concentration, but you will also pursue course work in at least two other disciplines within the arts. Once you complete your studies you will earn a Bachelor of Arts degree. If, under the guidance of our faculty, you complete a major piece of creative work as a senior project, you will earn a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree.
